

BLAKE GOBLE

Lover of strategy, processes, and craft beer.

As a project manager, I seamlessly weave the diverse threads of my professional journey, drawing from my experiences as an office manager for a production company and a store manager for Starbucks. The organizational finesse cultivated in overseeing day-to-day operations at the production office has translated into a meticulous approach to project planning and execution. From budgeting and resource allocation to team coordination, my tenure at the production company instilled in me a keen eye for detail and an ability to navigate the complexities of multifaceted projects. Simultaneously, my time managing a Starbucks store refined my skills in fostering a collaborative team environment, emphasizing effective communication, and honing my customer-centric mindset. This unique blend of backgrounds allows me to bring a versatile skill set to my current role, where I not only navigate project timelines and milestones but also prioritize the human dynamics essential for a project's success.
